VETERANS TO MEET.

REUNION TO-MORROW OF OLD SOL-DIERS OF CHESTERFIELD.

PROPOSE TO ERECT A MEMORIAL

Movement Inaugurated to Erect : Monument to Their Fallen Comrades-Conductor and Passengers

Fight-Other Manchester Items. county, and a host of brave men answered the call. Thirty-six years have passed since that time, but to-morrow morning another call will be echoed through Chesterfield-one so different.

Once the call was to battle; now to peace and to honor the dead who in that battle were slain. There are yet a good many left of the Chesterfield band, in Manchester and in the county, but even a careless observer can see the silvered hair cropping out that it cannot now be many years before the life battle will be over. They realize this, too, and some time ago, when a few of the old boys were together, their own hearty smiles and strong, warm grasps of the hand made them think of those whose last battle had been fought at Sharpsburg, at Chancellorsville, at Gettysburg, at Appomattox, and the impulse came over them to honor their memories by a pure marble shaft, imperishable as their deeds.

The call from these went out to assemble to-morrow at Chesterfield Courtuse, and there form an association by house, and there form an association by which meaney can be raised for this modest and deserved memorial. It is not to be a pile to the memory of any great general, to commemorate the glorious charge of any "light brigade," to point heavenward over the graves of the dead, but to tell the busy world that in battle the Confederate soldiers of Chesterfield county stood as firmly as it shall stand. It is not be for the private soldier alone, It is not be for the private soldier alone, or the general, but for both—for them all. TO BEGIN THE MOVEMENT.

It is not thought that sufficient funds will be secured in one day, but the move ment will be started and each old solder will give it a shove as it passes by Been it will come, and a proud, marble shaft, pure as proud, will rise 25 feet in the belmy summer air in memoriam of brave hearts bleeding in a cause that they knew to be right. Every Confederate soldier residing in Manchester and Chesterfield is invited to be there, and though no camp will be formed, an organization will be effected for the me-morial, and the old stories will be spun

The Personage Society of the Methodist church are going to have a picnic, and also, a tournament. Some of the gray old fellows who were with Stuart, and whose ears have heard the marvellous enging of Joe Sweeney, and have danced all night to the strains of his old banjo, are going to ride with their boys, and are going to ride with their boys, and are going to put them to shame, if they are not careful, it will be a great time, not because of the dead, nor yet the living, but because of that in man which will ever live-love for honor, for truth, for home, for God. ATTACK THE CONDUCTOR.

There was a lively fight on a Perrystreet car Friday night, in which the conductor received at the hands of a party from Richmond a face that appeared like newly-fallowed land. young men were coming from Forest-Hill Park, says the conductor, and were full. The leader was cursing and making himself disagreeable, so the transfer puncher told him to be more quiet, or he would put him off. In reply the young Alexander told the conductor he was and the fight began. The whole party fell on the conductor and tore his face frightfully, and pounded his nose to the tune of "Yankee Doodle." The motorman came back to where the battle was raging-not very near-and shouted, "What's the matter?" One of the party slapped him in the face and sent him back to the front of the car.

THREE FINGERS TO THE KNIFE. Mr. Charles Roberts, who resides or Thirteenth street between Stockton and Everett streets, is suffering from a very painful accident yesterday, which de prived him of three of his fingers. H is employed at the Richmond Wood-Works, just outside the cl., and while running his machine his left hand was caught in the cogs and badly mashed and mangled, so unfortunately so that when Dr. William P. Mathews was called in to see him he saw that amputation of the middle, ring, and little fingers of the left hand was necessary. Dr. Mathews called in Dr. Rucker, and the two physicians applied the knife.
The operation was very successful, and last night Mr. Roberts was suffering as little as could be expected.

KNOCKED DOWN BY A COW. Miss Mattie Bass, a daughter of Mr. William Bass, of this city, was knocked down by a cow yesterday morning and received very painful though not serious injury in the fall. The young lady is em-ployed in a Broad-street store in Richnd, and early yesterday morning was mond, and carry vectorary massing up Thirteenth street from her home on to the Perry-street car line for the capital city. A cow belonging to Dr. Thomas P. Mathews was standing in the alley between Hull and Bainbridge streets, and near the middle of Thirteenth street was the young calf of the cow. The young lady passed between the cow which apparently excited the erly fear of the kine, and before motherly fear of the kine, and before Miss Bass really knew what had happened she had been struck by the cow and knocked to the ground. In the fall her arm, which came in contagt with the pavement, was painfully bruised and other injuries of a more or less painful nature were received. Miss Bass wanted to see on to her place of amplement. to go on to her place of employment, but Dr. Mathews advised her to return home, as he knew she would suffer from soreness. The young lady is not at all seriously hurt. The cow is a gentle one, and was raised as a pet.

WHERE IS THE SON? vas rumored through the city during the last week that Mr. William Alley, a young man, who has resided on the Ninth-Street road, had been killed at Newport News. It was ascertained on the evening when the report began that no Mr. Alley had been injured or killed at Newport News, but yet the missing young man has not been heard from. He left the city a short while ago to go to the ship-building city to find work, and since the morning of his leave-taking nothing has been heard from him. Mr. Ira V. Alley, the father, was in the city yesterday, and expressed much concern for his missing son, and even fearcern for his missing sen, and even fear

STONE ON THE HEAD.

A small negro boy, who is thought to be from this city, struck Mr. Fergusson, who resides near this city, with a rock Friday, and the blow rendered that gentleman unconscious. There were a number of boys in the party gathering black-berries on the place. Mr. Fergusson ordered them off, when one of them picked up a rock and threw it at him, with A neighbor who saw the assault tried

According to the plan the Seaboard Air-Line will be a sort of school-teacher to the farming people of the section through which it runs. A travelling industrial training school has been started. It consists of a train, including started. It consists of a train, including sleepers and dining-cars, and manned by a crew of twelve men, carrying experts in the canning, preserving, pickling, butter, and cheese business, with all necessary machinery for the demonstrations to be made at all stops. The farmers and their wives drive in from the surrounding territory, and are shown the latest methods of butter-making, cannatest methods of butter-making, can-ning, etc., and taught how to save all farm products. The train also carries ag-ricultural machinery and household con-veniences of the latest pattern.

PORTRAIT OF GEN. MAGREDER. Colonel Cary to Present One to Lee Camp.

Colonel John B. Cary was heard to say on one occasion that in any movement to build up Richmond's business interest and add to Richmond's beauty-that in any movement to render as imperishable to the world the brave deeds of the Confederate soldier as they were to the hearts of all southern people-his fullest sympathies could be found. His whole life since 1865 bears this out, and is truly brought out in a little scheme of his which has not before been printed.

During his severe illness a short time ago, while lying upon his bed, his mind went back to the days of the war, and many pleasant memories clustered about his form-memories to him very familiar and very dear-of General John B. Magruder, of Peninsula glory.

SAGASTA AND CANOVAS. Former Thinks Delay of Woodford

a Bad Omen. MADRID, July 3 .- An interview is published with Senor Sagasta, the Liberal leader, in the course of which he is quoted as saying that he interpreted the delay in the arrival here of General Woodford, the new United States Minister to Spain, as an unfavorable symptom. Senor Sagasta is also quoted as saying that General Woodford's stay in London and Paris is intended to prepare the way for negotiations with a view to justfy-ing the attitude of the United States. The Liberal leader is said to have added that he believes Senor Canovas del Cas-tillo will not resign until the situation in Cuba has become so bad that it will be impossible to remedy it.
